Plan Commission votes to chop 28 proposals

By WAYNE LYON

"The voice of the people is in some ways divine."

Hesiod said it in 735 B.C. and, if you attended Thursday night's meeting of the Dixon Plan Commission, you have to be convinced it's still true today.

The planners listened to each person who wanted to speak, and in each instance moved to satisfy each request.

A total of 28 items were chiseled out of the 102 proposed changes in the zoning map which the Plan Commission is to recommend to the City Council.

The area which has caught the most heat, South Galena Avenue from Seventh Street to the city limits, and the Hines and Manor subdivisions, got quick attention.

David Higgs, 722 S. Hennepin Ave., who said he was selected by homeowners in those areas to make a statement expressing their opposition to proposed changes Nos. 54, 60, 69 through 78 exclusive of 73, and 94 through 101 of the legal description:

"We express deep concern about these proposals," he said. "We all built or purchased our homes after much thought. We chose the neighborhood because of churches and schools or because we wanted to be close to friends or relatives. We think it's a nice place to play, a nice place to live, and we enjoy the quality of life offered."

"We feel we are threatened vigorously," he continued, "by the proposed changes. We feel we face the likelihood of higher taxes, special assessments and expense to conform to fire codes. We further feel a threat from noise pollution, air pollution, rodents, an increase in crime and an increase in vehicular traffic. The traffic threat to our children, we view as a dismal reality."

Higgs said his group was offering an alternative. "We feel the expansion or improvement of our downtown area or the long-neglected Dementtown area would be a far better solution," he stated.

"Why cut into residential areas when Dixon is already critically short of housing. Let's recognize our faith in several downtown businessmen who have spent money to expand and invest in their property."

"We want some good things, not 'block-busting' and its resulting deterioration. We've seen the change in nearby towns with their hodge-podge appearance."

With that, Higgs asked everyone who agreed with him to quietly stand. Nearly all in the packed chamber got to their feet.

R. C. Bassetti, chairman of the commission, replied "We weigh what you say. We looked for a turnout and we got it. It's the best thing in the world."

Jim Phelps immediately moved to reject the areas Higgs outlined, with the exception of items No. 54 and 60. The commission gave it unanimous approval. Items 54 and 60 were later ruled out after objections by Mrs. Lucy Henning, 616 E. Third St.

Mrs. Henning protested a plan in item 54 to rezone an area between Jefferson Avenue and Dement Avenue and Third Street and Second Street.

She said the area was presently zoned for two-family dwellings and to rezone it multiple family would be "downgrading" the area.

Commissioner Arnold Spangler agreed item 54 "shouldn't be in there." He moved to

Skylab mission ends

Crew down safely in Pacific

ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Skylab 3's astronauts came safely home from man's longest space voyage today, splashing down with pinpoint precision in the Pacific Ocean after 84 days in orbit.

The Apollo taxi ship carrying Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue, and Edward G. Gibson parachuted into the sea 3.4 miles from this recovery ship to climax a record flight which the space agency said proved "America can do anything in manned space flight that it so desires."

During nearly three months in space, the astronauts had circled the globe 1,214 times, traveled 34½ million miles and gathered a wealth of scientific and medical data on man, his earth and his solar system.

The astronauts hit gentle waters 176 miles southwest of San Diego, Calif., at 11:17 a.m. EDT after a journey of 84 days, 1 hour and 16 minutes, breaking the previous Skylab 2 record of 59½ days.

With visibility of 10 miles, hundreds of white-clad sailors on the deck of the New Orleans had a ringside view of the landing.

Helicopters were overhead almost immediately to drop frogmen into the ocean to secure the bobbing spacecraft with a floatation collar.

The recovery ship immediately steamed toward the Apollo, ready to hoist it aboard as quickly as possible so space agency doctors could begin extensive medical examinations to determine how well the astronauts withstood their long exposure to space weightlessness.

"What a beautiful sight," Commander Carr reported as the spacecraft descended toward touchdown.

On landing, the astronauts immediately took pulse readings on one another and through scratchy communications one crewman could be heard saying, "70 beats on me."

The cone-shaped spacecraft turned over with its point down and floated upside down in the water. Inside, the astronauts pushed a lever to inflate three plastic balloons which forced the craft to right itself.

There was a small concern as re-entry approached when Mission Control detected a leak in one jet thruster system capable of guiding the Apollo through the atmosphere.

Not certain how serious the problem was, controllers instructed the astronauts to use a second thruster system that was operable. It worked perfectly.

Because of a slight possibility there might be propellant fumes in the cabin, the control center advised the spacemen to wear oxygen masks during the 30-minute re-entry period.

The astronauts, eager to come home, had started the trip earthward at 6:34 a.m. EDT when they separated the Apollo craft from the 118-foot-long space station which had housed three different crews for a total of 171 days.

"It's been a good home," Gibson said as they cast off. "I hate to think we're the last guys to use it."

Following a fly-around inspection of the station, the astronauts fired the first of three engine burns that guided them to a blazing dash through earth's atmosphere and the landing in the Pacific.

British miners to strike

LONDON (AP) — Britain's coal miners today rejected a last-minute plea from Prime Minister Edward Heath to put off their strike until after the Feb. 28 national elections.

Union leaders decided instead to call out the nation's 280,000 miners on schedule from midnight Saturday, raising the specter of widespread electricity cuts during the three-week election campaign and paralysis of British industry by spring.

The miners' walkout is now expected to strengthen the election prospects of Heath's Conservatives who plan a campaign on the issue of who runs Britain — the elected government or strike-prone trade unions.

Whatever the political advantage, leaders of all parties in Parliament had agreed that postponement of the strike would be in the national interest.

The decision to go ahead with the strike was made by the 27-man Executive of the National Union of Mineworkers.

Sid Vincent, Lancashire area secretary, told newsmen after the meeting that the vote was almost unanimous.

Vincent said that Joe Gormley, the union's relatively moderate president, had favored a strike postponement.

The Conservative prime minister, who has been standing firm against the miners' wage demands, coupled his announcement Thursday of the election with an appeal for postponement of the strike

More trucks roll, but some highway violence continues

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More trucks were reported on the road today as scattered incidents of violence continued and mediators attempted to persuade independent drivers to end their nine-day protest shutdown.

Increased truck traffic was noted by officials in Pennsylvania, Missouri and Kansas, but there was no sign that the shutdown to gain reduced fuel rates and other concessions was ending.

Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, the self-appointed mediator who initiated negotiations between dissidents and federal officials in Washington, journeyed to a truck stop in Bartonsville, Pa., to explain the settlement to protesters.

The manager of the Stop 76 in Bartonsville, Bill Fry, reported that truckers from nearby areas had gathered for the meeting with Shapp. But, Fry said, most remained opposed to the tentative agreement reached early Thursday.

Among other things, the government promised to provide the drivers with all the diesel fuel they need, and to allow a surcharge on freight rates to cover the recent hikes in fuel prices.

The violence that marked the nine days of protest fell off after announcement of the agreement, but authorities in at least eight states today reported shootings or vandalism had occurred again during the night.

Although most of the big rigs involved in the protest remained idle, there was some acceptance of the agreement with the government as Shapp and other negotiators brought their case to the protesters. In Santa Clara, Calif., a truckers' group voted 112 to 50 to accept the deal after a bitter two-hour debate.

"I think we are a long way from ending this mess," said strike leader J. W. "River Rat" Edwards in Kansas City. "As long as the government refuses to talk sense, we won't either." And 500 strikers attending a meeting with Edwards Thursday night vowed to stay shut down.

So did drivers attending Thursday night meetings in Joplin, Mo.; Branford, Conn.; Wildwood, Fla.; Coates, Minn.; Palmyra, Ill.; Moorhead, Minn.; Glasgow, Del.; and Phoenix and Tucson, Ariz. To flex their strength, some of the protesting drivers went out and closed down more truck stops Thursday night.

But National Guardsmen remained on duty in eight states to keep the peace and escort truck convoys of gasoline and food. Federal officials said they might call out federal troops if necessary.

State police in at least 10 states said that truck traffic was up, but still far below normal levels.

In almost every case, drivers speaking out Thursday on the proposed settlement echoed the view of Roger Gallaway of Overdrive magazine.

"It's is a sellout," he said. "They sold these guys down the river."

Violence was down considerably Thursday after the proposal was announced. There were reports of tire slashings, hose cuttings and scattered shootings. A bullet struck a policeman's car in Oklahoma.

There were still more than 100,000 workers laid off, and some more layoffs were expected to be felt briefly even if the strike ends. There were also predictions of scattered food shortages in the Northeast, where prices for scarce meat, poultry and produce were climbing rapidly. And it was predicted meat and produce would be short in supply for a week or so, with prices higher than normal.

Against that background, a few independent truckers said they thought the settlement fair and it was time to return to work.

Arrested for cutting truck hose

Sheriff's Deputies arrested a truck driver for B. P. Trucking Co., Thursday, after he reportedly cut an air hose on a semi owned by Schwerman Trucking Co.

Charged with criminal damage to property was Dennis W. Yocum, 24, Rt. 4.

The incident Thursday afternoon, at a diner near Franklin Grove, was the first arrest in Lee County related to the nationwide strike by independent truckers.

Yocum was released on bond at the sheriff's office. The driver of the Schwerman truck was having dinner at the time of the incident, deputies said. In a statement to deputies, Yocum was quoted as saying, "If I can't work, they shouldn't be allowed to."

Watergate committee tape request denied by judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge today dismissed the Senate Watergate committee's request for a court order directing President Nixon to give it five presidential tapes.

"The select committee has not established by a preponderence of the evidence that it is entitled at this particular time to an injunction directing the President to comply with its subpoena for the five tape recordings," U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell ruled.

"The application of the President's counsel for dismissal of the complaint is granted," the judge said.

It was the second time the committee has been rebuffed in an effort to gain court backing for its fight for the Watergate tapes.

Killed beneath his pickup truck

OREGON— Ronald W. Engelkes, 36, rural Ashton, was pronounced dead on arrival early today at KSB Hospital, after being found by a passing motorist pinned beneath his overturned pickup truck.

The accident occurred on Daysville Blacktop, southeast of Oregon. The motorist reported the accident at 12:45 a.m.

Investigation by Sheriff's Police into the accident showed the pickup truck was traveling south on the road when it left the pavement on the right and travelled 169 feet on its side, before coming to rest on its top.

Police say they are continuing their investigation. He was transported to the hospital by Mt. Morris ambulance.

Engelkes was born Jan. 2, 1938, in Chana, the son of Albert W. and Vera (Foss) Engelkes. He was married to the former Neva Hansen on April 27, 1958. He was an iron worker for Phalen Construction Company, Rockford. He was a member of the Rochelle Moose.

He was preceded in death by an infant son. Survivors include his parents; his widow; one son, Bruce, at home; three daughters, Bonnie, Barbara and Billie Jo, all at home; one brother, Marvin, Leaf River; three sisters, Mrs. Randall (Shirley) Frahm, Ashton; Mrs. Michael (Irma) Seaworth, Holcom; Mrs. James (Sharon) Verilick, Chana; maternal grandmother, Mrs. Ella Foss, Stillman Valley.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 1:30 p.m. in the Emmanuel Lutheran Church, Paynes Point. The Rev. Myron Bartell will officiate. Burial will be in the church cemetery. Visitation will be held in the Cluts Funeral Home Sunday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Tries suicide in cell twice

Ricky Barton, 18, an inmate at Lee County jail, attempted to hang himself in his cell on two occasions overnight, according to Sheriff Ray Nehring. Barton, 1620 W. Third St., used a sheet and blanket in his attempts, deputies said.

Barton was being held on charges of theft and battery in connection with an attack on Halloween night of a youngster carrying a bag of candy and aggravated battery stemming from an assault on Dixon Police Sgt. William Ostergrant, while being placed under arrest on the first two charges.

Kissinger: Sadat is a statesman

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

CAIRO, Egypt— Egypt's White House stands in a lovely park in the Giza district on the Nile. President Anwar el-Sadat received me there. His office is in the immense palace formerly occupied by King Farouk, but President Sadat is in a bout with bronchitis and we were in his home; sunlit, majestic and ideal in its view across throbbing, busy Cairo.

Madame Sadat was there with their daughter, Jehan, 16. All three speak excellent English and no interpreter was needed when the President took me into his study for our discussion alone.

Egypt's president, like most Egyptians, is instinctively courteous. But I found him also utterly forthright and candid even on subjects usually considered most touchy. He has his say, says it directly, and the invites you to have yours.

President Sadat has visited the United States repeatedly and knows both President Nixon and our country well. No one could have shown stronger support for Mr. Nixon's policies or admiration for the conceptions Mr. Nixon has laid down for Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to follow.

I had dinner with Dr. Kissinger on his recent visit to Egypt and he, in turn, told me he "had not been with President Sadat a full 10 minutes before I realized I was with a true statesman."

It is evident that President Sadat's Arab world leadership along the rocky route to moderation is not easy. In fact, his leadership automatically creates jealousies and countermeasures among other Arab leaders to a degree that is hard to fathom in our Western world.

Yet Egypt's president remains undaunted. His appeal is for time, time, time.

Documenting his statements one by one and based on the intimacy of his knowledge and contacts throughout the Arab world, President Sadat is convince—given time—one good step will lead to another since the visits of Secretary Kissinger.

President Sadat believes completely the Geneva talks will ultimately succeed. He spelled out in detail the activities behind the scenes in the Arab capitals that encourage his conviction. "I am more optimistic than I even dare to hope," he told me.

The President recognized the importance to Israel of certain strategic areas in Israel's own defense although, obviously, these do not include Israel-seized Jerusalem, and he showed a full understanding of Israel's internal military and political problems.

This is rare, indeed, in the Arab world as Dr. Kissinger himself told me he testified to Premier Golda Meir's cabinet in Israel.

At the same time, President Sadat pointed out the sheer justice in many of the Arab claims that are likewise supported by the United Nations but defied by Israel.

He sees the matter of the Palestinian evictees as an especially knotty problem, not alone because of Israel's actions but because the leadership of the evictee groups is fractured to the point that no voice can really speak for the evictees as a whole.

"This further complicates all negotiations," President Sadat stated, "as Dr. Kissinger immediately discovered."

However, even this "nearly impossible" issue does not daunt President Sadat's optimism on the basis of his knowledge behind the scenes.

Egypt's president said the United States is "blessed" by the quality of the Americans in charge of Mideast affairs.

He began with Ambassador-designate Hermann F. Eilts, who was for years our ambassador to Saudi Arabia and knows the Arab world completely. President Sadat expressed unbounded confidence in him and called him "fair and knowing and totally reliable."

He cited Elsworth Bunker, who is in charge for the United States at the Geneva Talks. Mr. Bunker went to Aswan with Dr. Kissinger for the discussions with President Sadat and clearly gained the President's respect.

He cited veteran Joseph Sisco, whom Dr. Kissinger persuaded to remain in the State Department instead of accepting the presidency of Hamilton College, as "a man of immense Mideast knowledge and understanding." His final praise was for Deputy Secretary of State Kenneth Rush.

Guaranteed plan to warm a desk

By RAY CROMLEY

Simple proposals which would cut much of the sting out of the energy crisis in 1974 have been lying on a desk at the White House for more than two months with no action, for or against.

Yet the recommendations, if adopted, would obviate the need for rationing and would entail no important sacrifices in comfort. They would cost nothing; that is, savings would be greater than costs.

This reporter has secured a copy of this report, written on White House stationary, which was prepared by a highly respected, technically knowledgeable official on President Nixon's staff.

The beauty of the suggestions, according to energy officials who have studied the memorandum, is each of the 22 proposals outlined is simple, proven, well-known and obvious, requiring no research. All are down-to-earth practical ordinary ideas such as combustion controls on steel heating-treating furnaces, fuel recovery in basic oxygen furnaces, production controls in steel reheat and heat treating operations, stack gas recuperators on industrial furnaces, preheaters in cement kiln operations, better ventilation control in industrial plants, computers to control temperature and ventilation in commercial structures, double-glazed windows in major buildings, the conversion of large central air-conditioning systems to heat pumps, automatic flue dampers, increased insulation, weather stripping and storm windows in private homes and better maintenance of water heater, air conditioning and heating equipment.

If this White House study is correct, its recommendations would, if adopted, bring first-year savings equivalent to 3.7 million barrels of petroleum per day, considerably more than current shortages.

The total potential longer-run savings are estimated at nine million barrels a day, which would carry this country through an extended, somewhat leaky boycott until major new sources of energy come into operation.

Now anyone who knows Washington understands regardless of how well thought out a plan may be, there will be some considerable slippage in time tables and most probably an inability to reach anywhere close to optimum results.

Perhaps the answer lies in the top-heavy bureaucracy which has been building up in Washington over the past several decades—a bureaucracy too cumbersome to swing into emergency action except when pressured by all-out war. For while the program assumes only the use of existing technology, and while the cost estimates are said to be conservative, the urgency of the fuel shortages requires the federal government begin a bold and aggressive crash program to assure the installation of these energy saving devices within the necessary time limits.

The program most certainly would require direct government involvement in incentives and write-offs, in insured loans, subsidies, demonstration projects and, most probably would require the government actively promote a market for approved types of energy-saving devices.

REFLECTIONS— Reports have come to us some local independent truckers have been warned to keep their rigs off the roads or suffer the consequences and this column was to have been an appeal to the striking independent truck operators to, above all, respect the life and property of others while they are striving to attract the attention of Washington.

We were going to remind them, while they have a right to protest, their activities are illegal since the lives of persons have been threatened and in some instances taken; the property of others has been placed in jeopardy and some damage has occurred, and there has been forcible restraint of economic activity.

We were going to say to them, "You can't win."

We were planning to remind them Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe earlier this week said he had once been a truck driver and he knew the operators' problems but no bunch of truck drivers was going to bring this nation to its knees.

We intended to assure them although the Illinois National Guardsmen, upon orders, left their guns in the armories, if the level of violence and deprivation of persons' civil rights rises they may be certain the armaments would appear in their hands to enforce the demands of the state.

This latter may come to be, and armed National Guard convoys may be escorting those truckers who want to move on to destinations.

That they won't win by flagrantly breaking the laws of this nation and indiscriminantly desecrating the civil rights of thousands of individuals is turning out to be false.

As the events in Washington Thursday developed, the government began acting on an economic question by political decision-making principles rather than by economic considerations.

The truckers want the cost of fuel rolled back to May prices: The government says "no," but they can have all the fuel needed and may pass on a certain amount of increased costs to others, ultimately to consumers.

There are moves in Congress to move back the price of fuel, but is the Nixon administration so committed to the interests of the oil industry it will not go along with shaving back the fuel prices?

One needs to remember the Committee to Re-Elect the President obtained something like $4 million in campaign contributions from oil interests.

For all of this we can hope those private enterprisers who pilot the wheeled behemoths over the highways and interstates of our land will not continue to carry out a kind of fratricide for this is like an army turning upon itself.

It is much harder to appeal to the highest motives of individual human beings who are caught in untenable situations when both we and they know the government will not respond in a legal and logical way.

So one way or another the trucks will start to roll, if not next week maybe the following week, but they will roar off in all directions.

They will not have gained all satisfactions they hoped to receive, but their situations will be somewhat improved.

Whatever the government gives the truckers will carry the seeds which will become the harvest of the next protest.

Nothing will be solved, only a problem will be passed on.

From whence will the next protest come: labor unions, consumers, beef packers, other industrial groups or farmers?

And witnessing how the truckers got a measure of satisfaction, one can predict the character of that protest will tend toward civil disobedience.

Arming both sides no way to peace

By DON OAKLEY

Secretary of State Henry A. Kisinger has added an oak leaf cluster to his Nobel Peace Prize but it will be a strong peace indeed that holds up under the tremendous concentration of weaponry that exists in the Middle East.

The Arab nations, and presumably Israel as well, are better armed and better equipped than they were before the October war, despite the fantastic expenditure of military wherewithal in that conflict. This is because, as some observers have pointed out, much of the equipment lost in the war was obsolescent or second line and the replacement material is spanking new and of the latest type.

In the massive air and sealift carried out by Russia in the course of the war, Egypt received 600 late-model tanks, 100 MIG-21 jet fighters, and 30 SAM-3 and SAM-6 missile batteries, among other military goodies.

Syria recieved 800 tanks (making her stronger in that category than France), 100 jets, 15 SAM missile batteries and other weapons.

There is also a tremendous secondary arms market within the Arab world, thanks to the unlimited funds commanded by the oil-rich members. According to the London Times, Libya has given nearly $100 million worth of arms, training and cash to various Palestinian terrorist groups.

Saudi Arabia, which has subsidized Egypt's wars with Israel to the tune of a billion or so, has concluded a deal with France: 5.6 billion barrels of crude for Mirage jet fighters, tanks, missile launchers, minesweepers, you name it.

Arabia Felix, the Romans called the Peninsula. Happy Arabia.

No slugabed in this business, the United States will deliver a consignment of F5E Freedom Fighters to Saudi Arabia this spring, making things even happier.

Iran, a non-Arab state and longtime recipient of U.S. military aid, will receive 30 F-14 Tomcat fighters beginning in 1976. Why Iran needs one of the most advanced planes in the world at a cost of $14 million per copy is a good question. Perhaps the Persians still remember the devastation wrought against them by the hordes of Genghis Khan.

Iran will also buy some Leopard tanks from West Germany. Happy Iran.

This is only the sketchiest outline of the arms situation in the Middle East—a situation created by and fostered by the United States, the democracies of Europe and the Soviet Union, to their mutual and collective shame.

Voice of the people

To the Editor:

If only the farmers and all other citizens of the United States would inform themselves, as to who are members of both the Council of Foreign Relations (CFR) and the Committee for Economic Development (CED) and their purpose, this, what was the greatest Nation in the world could still be saved; but other than that, I think private enterprise in farming and our present form of government are sure to fall.

Catholic reading for Protestants

By DAVID POLING

This is that time of year when most of the country is ready to give up. The Christmas bills look awful, the ice storm has returned, and now the energy crunch keeps pushing us around. In the middle of this heartache, the car battery and the right front tire look mighty sick. The January-February blues are depression indeed. But hope is coming. In fact, if you can read U.S. Catholic, the January issue has already arrived.

Can a Protestant or Jewish reader find happiness in a Catholic publication? Does a bear like honey? One of the real pluses of Vatican II was the increased awareness of religious publications other than one's own special brand. Writers, authors, theologians began appearing in all sorts of magazines and journals, never mind their denomination or brand of worship. U.S. Catholic offers a staggering amount of stimulating material that touches almost every aspect of church life in North America. Ideas on religious education, family life, ecumenical happenings, book reviews—all and more keep coming out of Claretian headquarters in Chicago.

The latest issue has a major interview with Eunice Kennedy Shriver and how to reach out to the unwanted, the unlovely, and the uncared for. She says, "Give love and you will be born again and again. You will give life to others, and they in turn will give love to you."

Apparently we are not the only one excited by U.S. Catholic, for its readership has jumped almost 50 per cent in the past two years. Controversy is healthy and constant, with articles such as "It is easier to be an American than a Christian," and "Nuns and Priests Belong in Uniform." (Almost half the readers said no to that one.)

Paul Conklin has a 12-page photo-essay on the Choctaw tribe in Mississippi, describing with understanding and compassion the isolation of this unique American people.

For this writer, the real ringer in January is the article by Daphne Pochin Mould who suggests, "Don't Blame It All On Constantine." The blame and grief? Over church order, structure, and organization. It just sort of developed, tried to meet needs, and should be considered as a more casual, temporary arrangement. She reminds us, since the Fourth century, "the church began to accumulate a whole fabric of customs and equipment people now think belong to religion by its very nature . . . Such expressions are not necessarily harmful. In fact, they may be excellent; but we need to remember they are not necessarily linked to the basic Christian message." (For reprints of this and other articles mentioned, readers may write to Kevin H. Axe, 221 West Madison St., Chicago, Ill. 60606.)

Under Executive Editor Robert E. Burns, the Claretian Brothers are providing the Christian community with good leadership as well as readership.

Augustana Choir will present concert in Dixon

A variety of musical moods and textures as well as contrasting styles and composers is included in the 1974 program of the Augustana Choir of Rock Island. The 70-voice choir, directed by Donald Morrison, will present a concert at St. Paul Lutheran Church, Fifth and Peoria, on Sunday at 7:30 p.m. There will be no admission charge. A free-will offering will be received to cover the choir's expense.

The opening selections are one of invitation and praise beginning with an arrangement of an early American hymn, "Come, Ye that Love the Lord." This is followed by two psalms, "Venite Exultemus Domino" and "Psalm 96," by Jan Pieterzoon Sweelinck, 16th Century Dutch composer. Closing this group is the motet, "Exultate Deo," by the contemporary French composer Francis Poulenc.

The second part contains five selections representing several periods and composers and built around the subject of Mary, the mother of Jesus. Included are "Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming," by Hugo Distler; "Ave Maria," by Sergei Rachmaninoff, and "A Hymn to the Virgin," by Benjamin Britten.

"Lamentations of Jeremiah," a selection of texts taken from the writings of Jeremiah the prophet, comprises the third part. The composition, produced in 1946, is by Alberto Ginastera, native of Argentina.

After intermission, the choir returns with three songs from the plays of William Shakespeare, set to music by the English composer Ralph Vaughan Williams. Included are "Full Fathom Five," "The Cloud-Capp'd Towers" and "Over Hill, Over Dale."

Part five consists of seven short songs by Francis Poulenc on texts by the surrealist poets, Guillaume Apollinaire and Paul Eluard.

The next portion of the concert is comprised of a group of traditional Irish folk songs, including settings of two poems by Thomas Moore. The concert closes with two spirituals, including the familiar "There is a Balm in Gilead."

The Augustana Choir has been described by a European critic as "one of the elite choirs of North America." The public is invited to attend the program.

'A Thief in the Night' to be shown Sunday

"A Thief in the Night," a new color film will be shown at The Dixon Assembly of God, 1006 S. Hemlock Ave., Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

"A Thief in the Night" is a mighty motion picture about Bible prophecy. It shows what can happen when Jesus Christ returns. This exciting story centers around Patty, an average girl caught up in living for the present, with little concern about the future. What happens when this thinking finally catches up with her provides an action-packed, unforgettable drama.

The fast-moving pace includes a young man confronted by a deadly Asian cobra, a young girl's daring escape from jail, and a take-over by "The Imperium" that regards all who are not properly identified as enemies of the system.

Filmed on location in Iowa, this picture portrays with devastating reality the Biblical prediction, "There will be no place to hide." One does not merely view this film, one experiences it. Every thinking person will seriously consider its impact.

Glenn Catlin named as Stronghold director

Glenn W. Catlin, Martinsville, Ind., became director of Stronghold, a center for spiritual renewal and study at Oregon on Jan. 15. The year-round conference and retreat center is operated by the United Presbyterian Church and serves the presbyteries of Blackhawk and Great Rivers in the Synod of Lincoln Trails as well as many National Training Events.

For the past five years Catlin has been director of program services in the national offices of American Camping Association (ACA) at Bradford Woods near Martinsville. He has carried responsibility for church camping and outdoor ministries as well as legislation, standards, training and health and safety.

Prior to going to ACA he was associate presbytery executive in Philadelphia, with the responsibility for camps operated by the presbytery. He is an ordained Presbyterian minister and has held pastorates in Illinois and Ohio.

Mrs. Catlin is an educational consultant and is available for leadership training services to local churches.

Mrs. Ann McMillen, Sterling, will speak on Parent Effectiveness Training at the Adult Forum at St. Paul Lutheran Church Sunday, at 9:30 a.m.

Her topic will be based on the popular new book "P.E.T." by Dr. Thomas Gordon. The book explains the tested new way to raise reponsible children.

Mrs. McMillen has nine children of her own. She takes special training for P.E.T. and teaches the subject at the Sterling YMCA.

Alliance Church to host convention

This Sunday evening at 7 p.m. the 1974 Missionary Convention begins at the Community Alliance Church.

Starting it off will be a group of young people from Wescove Christian High School, Potomac. Young people from the church attend the school and are in the program. They are Rhoda Derksen, Joan Shoemaker and Bruce Minson.

On Tuesday evening at 7 p.m. Rev. Neil Webber, pastor of Lombard Bible Church and former missionary to Thailand, will meet with the Senior AYF and the College and Career Sunday School class. Dudley Shoemaker, John R. Nevius, Glora Shoemaker and Rosemary Vaile are in charge.

On Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. the three missionaries recently returned from their fields of service and now, on furlough, will begin their ministries at the church. These are: Rev. John Ellison from Thailand; Rev. L. D. Wright, Mali, Africa, and Miss Esther Snyder from the Philippines. These missionaries have all served for several terms on their fields.

On Saturday night at 6:30 p.m. there will be a missionary supper. This is a meal when the women of the church prepare foreign dishes and bring them to the church. The three missionaries are present for this meal and they take part in the service that follows. The East Grove Union Church joins the Community Alliance Church for this event.

The closing Sunday night is the service when the new Missionary Pledge is made by the people. Last year the church gave over $7,000 exclusively for foreign missionary ministries. The public is invited to all services.

NO. 30
The Lord's House
. . . a Treasury of Man's Noblest Aspirations in Religious Architecture
St. Martin Church
(LANDSHUT, GERMANY)

Standing in a land of gigantic church towers: Ulm Minster - the world's tallest – 529 feet high; the Cathedral of Cologne - world's second tallest – 512 feet high; and Strasbourg, 466 feet tall, there is a little-known edifice which deserves special consideration.

Unique among the church spires of Christendom is that of St. Martin Church in Landshut, Germany. Rising 435 feet above the picturesque Bavarian city, the spire is the highest BRICK tower in the world. Since several other major edifices were also built of brick, it is assumed that either there was an abundance of brick available in that locality, or that stone was in scarce supply.

St. Martin was completed in the year 1500, although the church itself was built by the townspeople between 1389 and 1432 under the supervision of the master-architect, Hans Stethaimar of Burghausen, Germany. He is buried in the church.

The single tower is one of the outstanding features of Late Gothic architecture. During this period towers no longer were erected in groups, at various heights, to adorn a church; instead, a solitary tower was built at the front of the church and sent up to an unprecedented height.

Helping to support the spire of St. Martin Church are 22 slender pillars which one sees inside the church. Each of the pillars is 89 feet in height. They contribute to the beauty of the interior which is regarded as highly characteristic of the Late Gothic style.

Visitors also admire the church's stone pulpit and canopy which date from 1422. On the left side of the choir-arch is the heroic size figure of the Madonna carved by Hans Leinberger. The statue is one of the most important German wood carvings of the transition between the Gothic style and the Renaissance. Within the choir arch is a wooden crucifix made in 1495 that is four times life size.

'Charlotte' is enticing classic

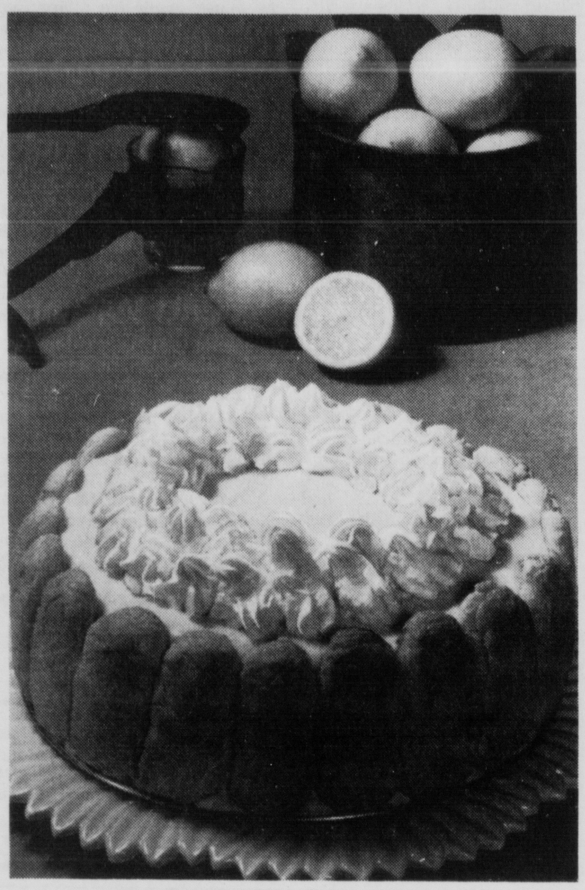
By AILEEN CLAIRE

A "charlotte russe" is a classic, cold dessert. A charlotte basically means a framework of biscuits or sliced bread with a sweet filling. Traditionally Ladyfingers are used for this attractive and enticing treat.

FRESH LEMON CHARLOTTE RUSSE

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
1½ cups sugar, divided
4 eggs, separated
½ cup fresh lemon juice
⅛ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons butter
1½ teaspoons grated fresh lemon rind
1 teaspoon vanilla
Ladyfingers
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
Whipped cream, optional

Mix gelatine and 1 cup sugar in top of double boiler. Beat egg yolks with lemon juice and salt; stir into gelatine mixture. Cook over simmering water, stirring constantly, until thickened, about 10 minutes. Stir in butter, lemon rind and vanilla. Chill until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Line bottom and sides of a 9-inch spring form pan with split ladyfingers. In large mixing bowl beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually add remaining ½ cup sugar and beat until very stiff. Fold egg whites and whipped cream into lemon mixture. Turn into spring form pan. Chill several hours, or until firm. Garnish with whipped cream, if desired. Makes 10 servings.



Lemon adds tang to Charlotte Russe.

Nelson Unit meeting

Mrs. William Harden, Mrs. Leo Peterson and Mrs. Russell Hallquist were co-hostesses when the Nelson Homemakers Extension Unit met Tuesday afternoon in Loveland Community House.

Mrs. J. C. Jaquet, first vice chairman, presided in the absence of the chairman, Mrs. Howard Greenfield, and 18 members answered roll call by describing ways to give assistance during an emergency.

Mrs. Sidney Buckaloo and Mrs. Jaquet presented the major lesson, "Common Household Emergencies," and the minor lesson on "How Safe Is Your Water Supply?" was given by Mrs. Edward Bollman.

Mrs. Robert Bollman and Mrs. William Palen were appointed to serve on the nominating committee to select new unit officers, who will be elected at the March meeting in Loveland House when hostesses will be Mrs. Robert Dempsey, Mrs. Harold Angier and Mrs. Arlo Conderman. Annual dues will be collected, and Mrs. Elwood Ortgiesen and Mrs. Mary Crombie will give a major lesson on "Fashion Forecast — Selection and Care of New Fabrics."

Film is shown for Elks Ladies Auxiliary

Mrs. Edwin Stark, who is associated with the American Cancer Society, showed a film entitled "For a Wonderful Life" at Monday night's meeting for the Elks Ladies Auxiliary in the Dixon Elks Club.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. Edward Dresden, president, and Mrs. Bruce Anderson.

Mrs. Dresden led the pledge of allegiance to the American flag to open a business session, and she also announced the next meeting for March 4 when new officers will be elected and the "Lady Elk of the Year" will be selected.

Mrs. Bruce Huffman and Mrs. Lorraine Heckman will serve as co-hostesses, and members assigned to serve refreshments at the Elks "game nights" were Mrs. Raymond Levan, Mrs. Al Nelson and Mrs. Anderson, Feb. 14; Mrs. Richard Spoor, Mrs. Robert Chinouth and Mrs. Pat Voss, Feb. 21; Mrs. Dresden, Mrs. Huffman and Mrs. Eileen Hobbs, Feb. 28; Mrs. Levan, Mrs. William Palen and Mrs. Heckman, March 7.

Wives of Elks Lodge members who can volunteer service on "game nights" are asked to contact Mrs. Anderson, 284-6563.

Phidians sponsor exhibit by Mrs. Cooper

The Phidian Art Club is currently sponsoring an exhibit of art works by Mrs. Ronald Cooper in Loveland Community House.

Mrs. Cooper, who signs her art works with the name, Mame Cooper, is a self-taught artist, and her exhibit includes works in oil, water color, acrylics and chalk. She is also displaying hand-molded and hand-painted plaques.

The artist won an award at the 1971 Phidian Art Show with her painting, "Catalpa Trees," a work which was described by the show judges as "having immediate appeal and excitement." The painting, a subtle blend of whites, grays and browns, was recognized by the judges as a "display of the artist's talent to create a bold composition of familiar subject matter."

Mrs. Cooper also exhibited in Aurora in a show sponsored by the Northern Illinois Gas Company, and in another show held in St. Paul Lutheran Church, Minneapolis, Minn.

The exhibit by the local artist will remain in Loveland House for public viewing until the end of March.

Practical Club meeting with Mrs. Tarvin

Mrs. D. M. Tarvin, 923 Institute Blvd., will be hostess to members of the Practical Club at a dessert luncheon planned for 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, and she will also present the afternoon's program.

Wesleyans dinner-meeting

Members of the First United Methodist Church Wesleyan Society have scheduled a scramble dinner for 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the church dining hall, which will precede a program by Miss Marian Kimball, a retired missionary who served 40 years in slum areas.

FADES FASHION

Cotton denim after it's washed becomes soft, supple and comfortable. That may partly account for its continued tremendous popularity in jeans, jean jackets, shirts and now in skirts, hats, pocketbooks and suitcases. Embroidered flowers, symbols, animals and free form designs add individualistic touch.

INA program by Dr. Sorensen

A dinner-meeting for the 13th District, Illinois Nurses Association, was held recently at Emerald Hill Country Club when the guest speaker was Dr. Ewald T. Sorensen of the Rockford Clinic, Rockford.

A graduate of the University of Wisconsin, Dr. Sorensen practices internal medicine and nephrology, and he is the originator and director of the renal dialysis unit at Rockford Memorial Hospital.

Discoveries

The speaker stated that 20 years ago kidney disease was seldom discussed, primarily because of the lack of knowledge concerning proper treatment. Interest developed with the discovery and refinement of renal dialysis and kidney transplants. Today, more employed persons are away from work because of some type of renal disease than any other illness, but in the past 15 years, new procedures and techniques have been developed and used extensively.

Dr. Sorensen stressed that the dialysis machine is less important than the trained personnel who operate it. The cost to patients who are treated in hospital dialysis units can amount to approximately $20,000 annually, and the goal of doctors is to get the patients and their families trained to care for the victims at home. State and federal funds are available to those who need financial assistance.

At Rockford Memorial Hospital there is a five-bed dialysis unit operating in two shifts, with a personnel of 30 persons. They have trained 12 technicians to give treatments for patients in their homes and Dr. Sorensen said that 85 per cent of the patients receiving treatment three times each week, live normal lives. They are not placed on the machine until normal kidney function is below 10 per cent, and the speaker stated that following many years of treatment, a kidney transplant can be made.

A question-and-answer period followed the address by Dr. Sorensen, and Mrs. Michael Fleming, Dixon, district president, conducted a business session when Mrs. Richard McLaughlin, Sterling, first vice president and membership chairman, announced that the district currently has a membership of 147 nurses.

New Members

Introduced as new members were Miss Carolyn Spires and Mrs. Susan Wetzel, Franklin Grove; Mrs. Deborah Cady, Deer Grove; Mrs. Joyce Fedderson, Milledgeville; Mrs. Sally Simonson, Sterling; Mrs. Mary Jane McNames and Mrs. Mary Ann Linton, Byron.

A program on cancer research and nursing care for cancer patients by Dr. Janet Wolter of Rush - Presbyterian - St. Luke's Medical Center, Chicago, was announced for the May 9 district meeting, and a report was given by the treasurer, Mrs. John E. Goy, Dixon. The finance committee chairman, Mrs. Raymond Jordan, Dixon, discussed fund-raising projects, and the winner of a current project was Thomas Voss, son of Mrs. Patricia Voss, R.N., Dixon.

Mrs. Raymond Appler reported on a recent workshop sponsored by the Illinois Nurses Association at Sauk Valley College, and the district second vice president and program chairman, Mrs. Donald Brown, Franklin Grove, discussed plans for Illinois Nurses Week March 10-16 when the theme will be "Promoting Higher Standards and Providing Quality Care."

In observance of Illinois Nurses Week, members of the 13th District will sponsor a dinner and fashion show March 14 when three registered nurses, one from Lee County, one from Whiteside County and one from the entire district, will be given special recognition.

Prior to Nurses Week, votes will be cast to select the "Nurse of the Week," and all interested persons may vote by clipping a ballot to be printed in local newspapers. The nurse chosen for the title will be introduced at the dinner and fashion show.

Committee

Mrs. Brown, chairman of activities planned for Nurses Week, will be assisted by Mrs. Fleming, Miss Martha Wilson, Mrs. Gabriel Santos, and Mrs. David Bracken, Dixon; Mrs. Norbert Padilla, Mrs. Clarence Smith and Mrs. Patricia Tripp, Rock Falls; Mrs. Harry Wright, Sterling; Mrs. Elsie Stultz and Mrs. Richard Barth, Franklin Grove, and Mrs. James Matznick, Polo.

Approximately 125 district members and guests attended the dinner and program, and special guests were Dr. C. K. Michael Hong of the Medical Arts Clinic, Dixon, and Dr. Fred Husted of the University of Missouri Medical Center, Columbia, Mo.

Dear Ann by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please comment on the psychological aspects of a husband spanking his wife?

I am 20 years old, married to a man who is 30. We've been married only two months and already we are in conflict over this matter. Please understand that I love and respect my husband. He was my first sex partner and I am ten years his junior. He regards me as "his little girl." I find it refreshing and enjoyable, compared with the problems other married couples are having.

Last night we had an argument about my "disobeying" him. He turned me over his knee and gave me a hard spanking with a hairbrush.

I hysterically told him it was the most humiliating experience of my entire life. He suddenly became very sweet and explained calmly that because I had lost my father at a tender age I needed a strong, domineering father-figure— and he is it. He also said spanking is a "personal, intimate and highly sexual form of correction," bound to improve our marriage and heighten my respect for him.

Am I headed for trouble?— S.B.

Dear S.B.: Headed for trouble? You've got trouble NOW. You are already married to the nut.

A man who believes spanking a wife "heightens her respect for him" has a few loose bolts. If you buy this crock of cranberries, "little girl," you deserve what you get. And don't be surprised if that "charming man" breaks your jaw one day when he feels the need for a few extra jollies.

Dear Ann Landers: Your neutral stance on astrology does your readers a grave disservice. What Ann Landers says is considered "The Word" by a tremendous audience. I am writing this letter because I believe members of the scientific establishment should make their thinking known. The charlatans swamp the public with whatever they wish to promote while scientists somehow feel it is beneath their dignity to acknowledge the existence of any hocus pocus.

If you had seen lives destroyed by the belief in astrology, as I have, and if you knew as much about the subject as I do, you would share the belief of the scientific community that astrology is at best a religion, and not by any stretch of the imagination a science.— H.K.E.V.W., Chairman, Department of Astronomy, University Of Southern Florida At Tampa.

Dear Chairman: Since your letter arrived I have done some research and I am no longer "neutral." Thanks for moving me over with the scientific community.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married for eight weeks to an attractive, intelligent, well-mannered man. He is also the biggest liar I have ever met. His lying, I'm afraid, is compulsive and pathological.

Could therapy help him? When I hinted he needed it he flew into a rage. Last night I came right out and said, "You need counseling." He refused to speak for hours. I can't bear his anger and his stony silence. What should I do? I'm determined to make this marriage work. It's my second.— Honeymoon Finito

Dear Honey: Get some counseling for yourself and find out why you married "the biggest liar" you ever met.

Can he be helped? Judging from his reaction to your suggestion— that he get counseling— no. Receptivity is essential, and his is zero.

Unlucky expert lucks out

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The unlucky expert had caught us again. This time he was all smiles. For once, he had a story of success. Here it is!

"I had visions of a slam when my partner responded one heart, but they disappeared into thin air when his next bid was a jump to the spade game. Still four spades is a nice comfortable contract. West opened the queen of diamonds and my comfortable contract did not look too good.

"With my luck both minor-suit aces were sure to be wrong and if either major suit broke 4-1 my goose was cooked. Anyway, I played the king of diamonds. East plunked on the ace as expected and led the suit back. I ruffed and studied the hand for some time.

"Finally, I decided to lead a club from my own hand. West won the trick with the nine and led a third diamond. Now I was home if the major suits broke. I ruffed, cashed my top trumps, entered dummy with the queen of hearts, pulled the last trump and made game and rubber."

The hand was well played. If he had tried some other line he would almost surely have gone down. Furthermore, his luck may have changed. A trump lead would have doomed him to defeat. 8

Altar and Rosary Society plans buffet and show

Final arrangements are being made for the salad buffet and fashion show, "Heart of Fashion," to be sponsored by St. Patrick's Catholic Church Altar and Rosary Society Tuesday night in St. Mary's School.

The salad buffet, to be prepared by members of the sponsoring organization, will be served from 6 to 7:30 p.m., and hostesses will be Mrs. William Herzog, Mrs. John Huyett and Mrs. Robert Rutherford.

Models for the fashion show, scheduled for 8 p.m. in the school auditorium, will include Mrs. Richard Devine, Miss Sue Devine, Mrs. Henry Dixon, Miss Kathy Burnell, Mrs. Douglas Jones, Mrs. William Kelly, Mrs. Robert LeSage Jr., Mrs. E. B. Long, Mrs. Gordon McFetridge, Mrs. James Montavon, Mrs. Don Phillips, Mrs. Alice Rock, Mrs. William Stover, Mrs. Louis Venier, Mrs. Larry Wilson, Mrs. Delmar Wolfe, Steven Bieser, Dennis Considine, Charles Helfrich, Everett Kraft, James Montavon, Joseph Rock and Timothy Rock.

Children participating as models will be Dina Dempsey, Kelly Devine, Jay, Jeffrey, Jill, Renee and Rhonda Montavon; Renee Phillips, Jennifer Rock Kimberly Shehorn, Becky and Sarah Stover.

The models will be wearing costumes for all occasions provided by the following Dixon stores: Boynton-Richards Company, Crossroads, Eichler Brothers Inc., Hank Henry's Men's Shop, Hollywood Shop, House and Town Shoppe, Kline's Department Store, Montgomery Ward and Company, J. C. Penney Inc., Spurgeon's Store, and the Vogue Shoppe.

Mrs. Anthony Varga, general chairman for the event, is being assisted by Mrs. William Powers, president of the Altar and Rosary Society, and Mrs. Raymond Daniels, and co-chairmen of the fashion show are Mrs. David Dempsey and Mrs. Edward Dresden.

Mrs. V. P. Long will serve as commentator for the show, and the models will be assisted by Mrs. Joseph Engelbrecht, Mrs. Robert Brechon and Mrs. C. E. Knigge. Musical entertainment will be provided by the Dixon High School choral group, the Twelve Belles, Miss Betsy Flanagan and Miss Nancy Chamberlain.

Tickets for the buffet and show may be obtained at St. Mary's School, or from members of the Altar and Rosary Society. Additional tickets will be available at the school Tuesday night.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE Z-547: Delighted Dora, aged 36, is the former worried wife whose husband threatened to leave her if she didn't lose weight.

"Dr. Crane," she reminded me, "he insisted I get back down to within 10 pounds of my weight on our wedding day.

"So I started on your famous dehydration, drugless diet.

"For I had gained up to 154 from my bridal weight of only 118.

"Well, that first day, when limited to but one total glassful of liquids, my mouth felt cottony.

"And I was more interested in ice water than in food.

"But by the third day, when I was entitled to three glasses of liquids, I was feeling fine.

"My stomach had shrunk and by use of cottage cheese, hot dogs and similar high protein menu items, I felt fairly full.

"Sure enough, I was down 10 pounds at the end of the first 10 days!

"Then I shifted to your Diet No. 2, which let me move up from 800 calories per day to 1,200, though I found I could get along quite well on only 1,000 calories, due to my shrunken stomach.

"At present, therefore, I have lost 1½ pounds per week for the last eight weeks, making a total of 12 pounds, plus the 10 I eliminated those first 10 days.

"That means I am now down 22 pounds, so I tip the scales at only 132.

"And for the past few weeks, I have noticed a romantic glint in my husband's eye.

"He no longer sits down to read the newspaper in the living room when he arrives.

"Formerly, he'd just call 'Hi, Honey, I'm home' and then read or watch TV till dinner time.

"Now he comes out to the kitchen as soon as he arrives and gives me a thriller diller kiss.

"In fact, now he often stays at the kitchen table to read the paper instead of going back to the living room.

"And he has even taken me out to see a couple of movies in the past few weeks.

"Meanwhile, I have purchased a couple of diaphanous nighties and some new perfume, so I can serve more enticing boudoir cheesecake to him.

"And it works like a charm!

"He is almost as romantic as on our honeymoon, though we have been married 15 years!

"And he doesn't growl about my buying new dresses, either, so tell your other stodgy wives how to insure a revival of their honeymoon romancing."

Boudoir Cheesecake.

"Phooey to your boudoir cheesecake!" some irate wives have protested.

But that's because they are too lazy to try it!

When wives regain their honeymoon figures and take a more active interest in boudoir cheesecake, they find that Dora's experience is typical.

"Dr. Crane," many two-timing husbands have confessed, "I'd much rather have an affair with my wife than with the paramour I now maintain in a secret love nest.

"But my wife is fat, stodgy and doesn't seem to understand what boudoir cheesecake refers to!

"So I am driven into the arms of a seductive siren just to gain that extra erotic satisfaction that men are created to desire.

"But if my wife would wake up and diet, I'd be delighted to stay home!"

Wives, send for my booklet "How to Prevent Platonic Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents, and thus keep him at home!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

The Doctor Says:

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — About five years ago a dentist discovered that the bone around my teeth was deteriorating, but he did nothing about it. He told me there just wasn't anything that could be done, that my teeth would just loosen and fall out.

Needless to say, this has just worried me sick. I just can't believe that there isn't someone who can help me. I have always taken pride in my appearance, and I am 33 years old. So, I sure don't want my teeth to fall out. I have been in the hospital for tests and Xrays to make sure the condition was confined just to my teeth. The doctors could give me no reason for the bone condition either. So, I'm hoping that you can tell me someone whou could hlep me with my problem.

I have noticed that my teeth are shifting and seem to be getting loose, mostly my front teeth on the bottom.

DEAR READER — Your description fits a common dental problem. The bone, gingiva (gums), and supporting structures around the teeth degenerate and cause this problem. There are probably several different causes for this problem. I am happy to tell you that most dentists believe it can be, and most certainly should be, treated.

The usual form of treatment is to remove all the deposits that have accumulated and hardened around the teeth just under the gingiva. The main goal of treatment is to eliminate the possibility of food particles and degenerated tissue cells that normally occur from accumulating around the root of the teeth, and eliminate any infection.

Often because of earlier deposits the gingiva is pulled loose from the root of the teeth and leaves little pockets at the root for accumulated material. The dentists treats this problem by removing the loose gingival tissue so that your remaining gingiva fit snugly against the tooth root and there are no pockets. With these measures and the home treatments he usually prescribes, the process can often be stopped.

You need to see a dental specialist called a periodontist. He can and will do something about your problem.

The cause of all of these problems is not known and a good general medical evaluation in such cases is important. There is good evidence that a deficient calcium intake will contribute to this problem in some cases. Adequate vitamins with a general good diet are important. I would suggest that your first step should be to see a periodontist. I would also recommend that you be sure to get enough calcium, at least a quart of milk a day. Use the fortified skim or low fat milk to avoid a high fat intake. Also take large does of vitamin C. Take 1,000 milligrams a day. Some think this helps. In this amount, it won't hurt you. If you smoke, stop smoking at once. These measures should help, but you need those treatments from a periodontist. If you follow these measures you may well be able to save your teeth.

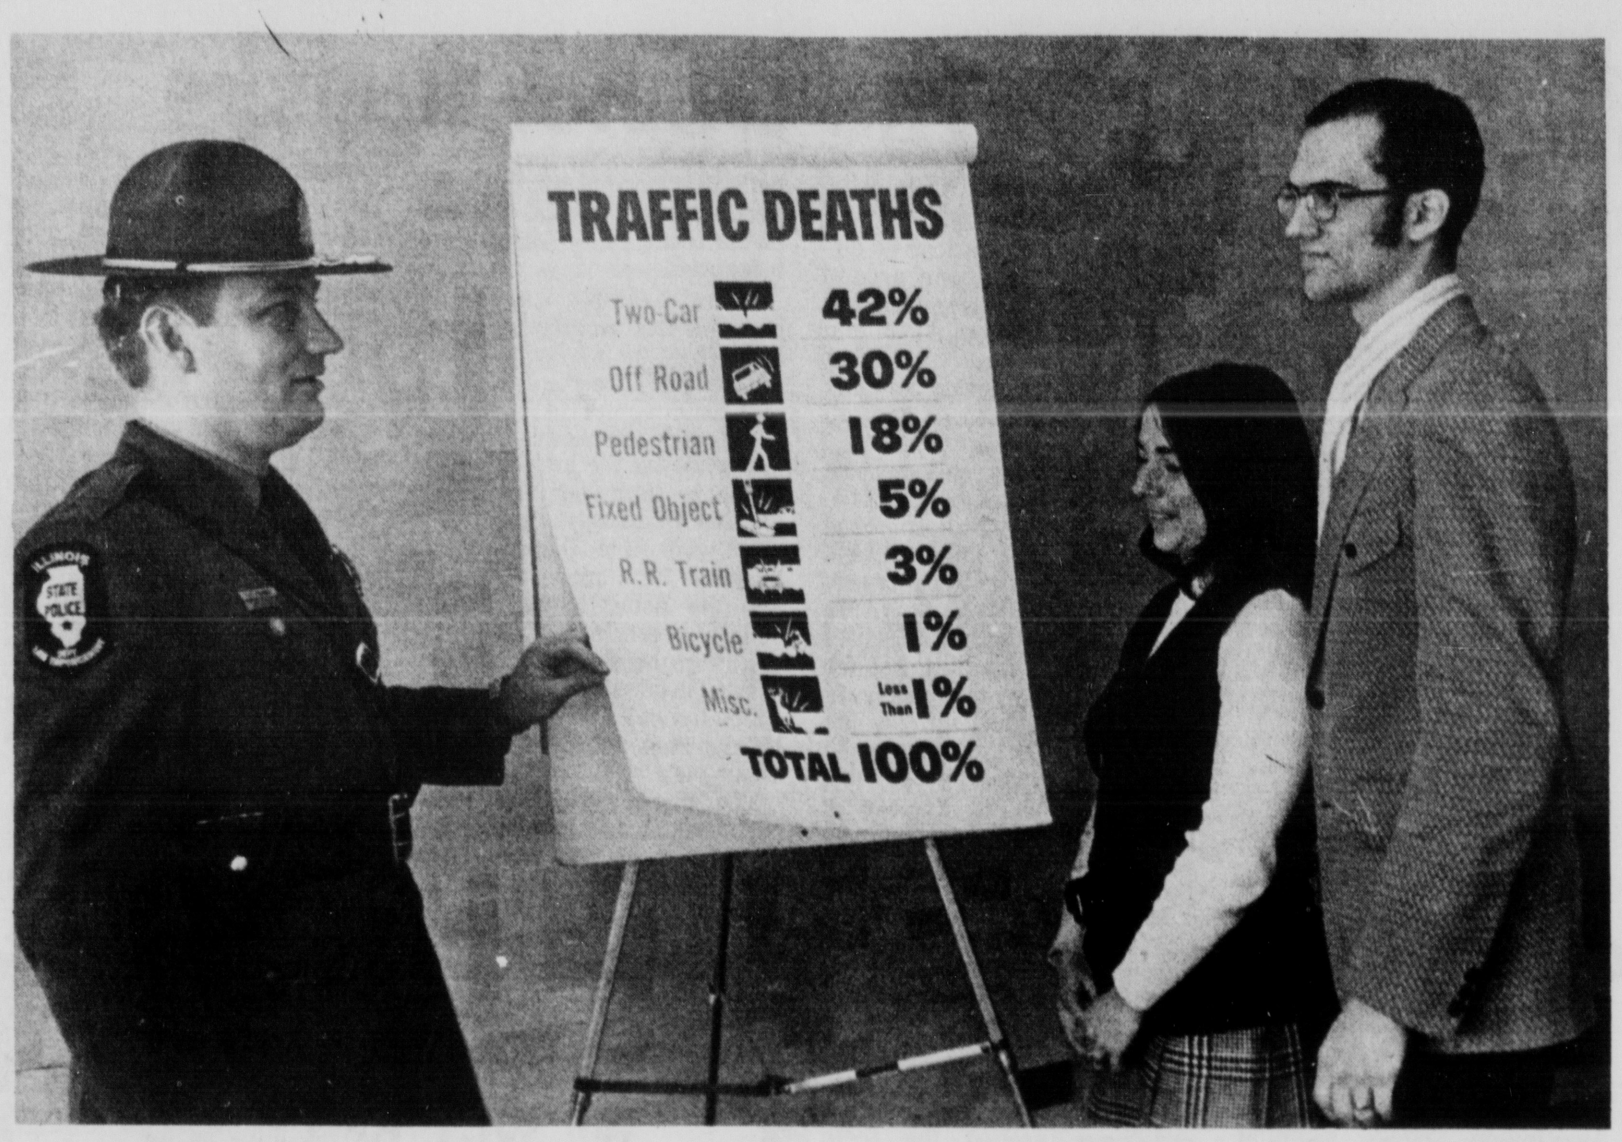
Probation on burglary charge

Randy E. North, 21, was placed on two years probation Thursday after he pleaded guilty to burglarizing Ives Drug Store, Franklin Grove. The Franklin Grove man was additionally ordered to make restitution for $338 in cash and two watches taken in the burglary. North was arrested by sheriff's deputies Nov. 2.



Defensive driving class

The Dixon YMCA will sponsor a Defensive Driving Course for area residents on March 5, 12, 26 and April 2, beginning at 7 p.m. nightly. Eighty-five per cent of all accidents are still attributable to driver error, and these errors account for over 56,000 deaths annually plus 2,000,000 disabling injuries and billions of dollars in property damage. Most driving errors can be traced to lack of training, according to State Police Trooper Jerry O'Sadnick, left, instructor. Area drivers may sign up at the YMCA in advance or on the evening of March 5. Each session will last two hours. Cost will be $1 for Y members, and $2 for non-members. Program directors pictured with O'Sadnick are Aneda Ebert and Randy Ullrich. (Telegraph Photo) reject it and the motion won unanimous approval.

Plan Commission

Mrs. Henning got involved again over item 60. The proposal would have rezoned the former law offices of Wadsworth and Hornsby to B-1.

She asked why the area couldn't be zoned for multiple family, the same as the rest of the block.

"If you make it B-1, we'll lose control over what goes in there," she said.

Phelps moved to make it multiple family and the commission gave approval with Dave Williamson, who was involved in the law firm, abstaining.

Proposed rezoning of North Galena Avenue from Everett Street to McKenney Street from multiple family to B-2, prompted somewhat more discussion and resulted in a split vote for rejection.

John Rich represented the objectors in the area.

"We feel the same as those on the South Galena area," he said. "We are just as strongly opposed to the rezoning."

He asked for a show of hands and only six were counted.

A quick check revealed the proposed changes involved Nos. 61 through 66 on the legal description.

Williamson and Phelps launched a discussion on the merits of the proposed changes.

Williamson said, "I object to the proposed changes because there is no way to control the type of businesses which might go in there."

Referring to the building of First Federal Savings and Loan, granted a special use in the area, he continued, "With First Federal we had a chance to look at plans, specifications and beautification work. I'd like to keep it that way for each individual lot."

Phelps asked Williamson if he didn't feel the area was already influenced by business zoning on either end, and Williamson had to agree it was.

Williamson stated, however: "Why do something wrong to right another wrong?"

Phelps argued progression studies show Dixon growth will be to the north and northwest.

"I can't analogize the North Galena picture with that of South Galena," he explained. "South Galena is not yet influenced by commercial zoning."

Commissioner John McLane Jr. moved to reject items 61 through 66.

Another commision member, Paul Bay, jokingly asked McLane, "Will you include a statement spot zoning or special use isn't a dirty word anymore?"

City Atty. Tomas Magdich commented he felt the City Council would show increased resistance to special use or spot zoning to get away from giving the opinion such zoning is granted on a "who you are" basis.

When it did come to a vote, Don Miller, McLane, Walt Kevern, Williamson and O. B. Gerlach voted for rejection.

Phelps, Bay and Jim Hey voted against rejection. Arnold Spangler abstained. Bassetti did not vote.

Items No. 33, 83 and 102, agreed upon by the commission as mistakes in the legal description, were rejected on a motion by Spangler.

The commission got around to accepting items 1 through 31 on this list. Those changes are to put public use areas, such as parks and schools, in the zoning classification of the contiguous area.

Also accepted were items No. 1, 3, 4, 5 and 6, on proposed changes in the zoning code. Only Planned Unit Development (No. 2) and BH-X, businesses within planned unit developments (No. 7) were tabled for further study.

The planners will resume work on the proposals at their Feb. 27 meeting at City Hall, scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Deputy cleared; accuser jailed

OREGON— Sheriff's Deputy Jesse Suter was cleared of a battery charge in Ogle County Circuit Court and his accuser was sentenced to 120 days periodic imprisonment. Richard Nielsen, Oregon, pleaded guilty to resisting a police officer and was sentenced Thursday by Circuit Judge F. Lawrence Lenz.

Nielsen dropped the charge he brought against Suter following his arrest Nov. 4. Nielsen was stopped in his car by Deputy Suter on a traffic violation in Oregon. As Deputy Suter turned on his red lights to pull Nielsen to the curb, Nielsen continued driving and pulled into the sheriff's office parking lot.

Suter said he was going to issue Nielsen a warning ticket for the offense; however, Nielsen refused to show the deputy his driver's license.

As Suter took Nielsen into the jail section, Nielsen shoved the deputy and had to be subdued by placing handcuffs on him.

Nielsen later went before Associate Judge Alan Cargerman and signed a complaint against Suter for battery. Nielsen accused the deputy of kicking him in the groin during the time Suter was attempting to handcuff him.

During a jury trial Jan. 9, Nielsen changed his innocent plea to guilty on the resisting arrest charge and moved for the dismissal of the battery charge.

To share cost of covering old Rochelle landfill

ROCHELLE— Tentative approval to share the cost of covering the old Rochelle landfill between the council and the landfill operator, Clyde Gelderloos, was given at an informal meeting of the council Thursday afternoon.

Street Commissioner Phil May suggested a 50-50 split on the cost. Gelderloos stated "I think I'm agreeable but would like to speak with my attorney first."

L. Curt Addison of the Division of Land Pollution Control stated the operator (Gelderloos) is primarily responsible but the city, as owner, may also be responsible in a secondary nature.

Gary C. Brashear, administrative assistant of the surveillace division of land pollution control, felt that Gelderloos was responsible according to EPA standards but the city, as owner, is liable for violations of these standards.

No definite cost has been set on the required two-foot cover to close the old landfill. Final action will be taken later at a formal meeting.

Landfill bids opened

ROCHELLE — One bid was received and opened earlier today at the Rochelle City Clerk's office for the operation of the new Rochelle landfill site in Dement Township on Mulford Road. The bid was received from Clyde Gelderloos of the Rochelle Disposal Service for $4.85 per ton of solid disposal. Gelderloos put up a $5,000 performance bond.

No action was taken this morning at the opening of the bids but the contract will be introduced at the next city council meeting. The council will then lay the contract over for two weeks for public inspection.

Guilty plea brings probation

Walter D. Snow, 24, 524 W. First St., was placed on two years probation and ordered to make restitution for a bogus $63 check passed at Food World. Snow pleaded guilty to a forgery charge prior to sentencing in Lee County Circuit Court Thursday. Police said the check was found to be stolen from a house burglary in Whiteside County during 1973.

Other dispositions Thursday included:

William Eastman, 26, 1417 Ann Ave., fined $125 on a conviction for driving under suspension of his license.

Michael E. Mills, fined $25 on a conviction for illegal transportation of liquor.

Dorisann Piper, 19, 824 Jackson Ave., was given a six-month conditional discharge after pleading guilty to theft in connection with a series of bad checks passed in Dixon area. The court took under consideration that the girl made restitution for the checks.

Nabbed on warrant

Lane Goff, 20, Moore's Trailer Court, was arrested Thursday by sheriff's deputies. Goff was named on a bench warrant from Whiteside County. Further details were not available.

Three file for park positions

At noon today three persons had announced that they were candidates for commissioner of the proposed Southwest Lee Park District.

Those who had filed nominating petitions in the office of John Stouffer, county clerk, are: J. Thomas Larson, Harmon; Dale Brownlee, rural Amboy, and Valery C. "Larry" Leffelman; Sublette.

Five commissioners will be elected at the Feb. 23 election, when there will also be a referendum on the question of establishing the proposed district. If the referendum is voted down, the election of commissioners becomes void.

Deadline for filing nominating petitions is 5 p.m. today.

Watergate probers get gifts from those under study

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three Senate Watergate committee members up for re-election this year have received contributions from individuals or groups that have fallen within the scope of its investigation.

The contributions are listed in campaign financial reports filed with the secretary of the Senate.

Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., received three $100 contributions and one of $50 from executives of four companies that pleaded guilty last year to making illegal corporate contributions to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

The companies are Gulf Oil, Ashland Oil, Goodyear Tire & Rubber, and Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing.

In addition, Gurney received contributions of $100 each from two of Nixon's close friends, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo and the late Murray Chotiner.

Rebozo has been under investigation in connection with his handling of a $100,000 contribution from Howard R. Hughes, while Chotiner was linked with recruitment of two journalists to report on the activities of Democratic presidential candidates in 1972.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, received a $5,000 contribution from George M. Steinbrenner, of Ohio, chairman of American Ship Building Co.

Steinbrenner has been involved in an investigation of the alleged use of phony company bonuses to conceal a $25,000 corporate doanation to Nixon's 1972 campaign.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., received contributions of $5,000 each from the political committees of two dairy groups, Space and Adept, whose donations to Nixon's campaign have been under investigation with the increase he ordered in milk price supports.

Surrenders in purse thefts

Robert Hubbard, 21, Belvidere, surrendered to authorities here Thursday on a charge of armed robbery in connection with the theft of purses from two women Dec. 10, 1973. Two others, James Wilson, 22, Woostock and Eugene Bonnell, 20, Nelson, are also charged in the two incidents which occurred in Dixon.

In the 400 block of South Galena Avenue, Tillie Monks, rural Oregon was confronted by a man who demanded her purse. Several minutes later, Mrs. Frances Wilson, 220 North Court was ordered at gunpoint to turn over her purse to another man.

Hubbard and Bonnell were being held in Lee County jail; Wilson was released on bond. Their cases were continued in court for two weeks for filing of defense motions.

Dispute over performance of trade emissary

By SKIP WOLLENBERG
Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — State officials are in the midst of a dispute with a man sent to Hong Kong last December to develop foreign trade contacts who they say returned nine months later with only a few promises and a handful of expense claims.

The man in question is William Liou, 42, born in Taiwan and now living in Wheaton, who says his removal as head of the Illinois agricultural office in Hong Kong was premature and may have been done for political reasons.

Liou was sent to Hong Kong in December 1972 by the outgoing Republican administration over the protests of incoming Democrats. But State Agriculture Director Robert Williams said he developed only two solid trade leads for Illinois exporters in nine months.

"From what we could tell, all he was doing was island-hopping from place to place. Whenever we tried to get in touch with him, he was off someplace where we couldn't reach him. His nine months had had all the appearances of one big vacation," Williams said.

Liou said, however: "I am proud of my accomplishments there. I believe I did a good job and that is the opinion of the people I worked with over there. The Chinese themselves have congratulated me for my performance."

He said he has documents which show he had developed at least 14 trade leads while in the Far East; was in the process of making more, and was called home just when things started rolling.

"The governor wanted his own man there, and director Williams never gave us any direction about what he wanted us to do," Liou said.

Liou organized a group called Chinese for Ogilvie in the 1972 campaign against Gov. Daniel Walker.

"If I say my firing was political, they'd say the same about my hiring," Liou said.

"If you want to give someone a political job, you'd put him in Springfield where he could hide. You wouldn't send him to open a a foreign office where the federal government would be watching the other states would be watching," Liou said.

Illinois Focus

Liou, knows five languages and was a stock exchange analyst, an insurance agent and the founder of a frozen food company. He was the first of the state's representatives in the Hong Kong office established in September 1972 to spur trade in the Far East.

He was fired as of Sept. 30, 1973.

Attorneys for Liou and the state met last week to decide what to do about nearly $10,000 in expense vouchers filed for July, August and September. The state contended they were for too much and Liou's lawyer agreed to revise them.

One of the disputed items involves a trip last summer by the Liou family to Hong Kong which was made primarily at state expense.

Liou left Chicago with his wife, three children and $3,100 in airplane tickets in early August, stopping for five days in Hawaii, four in Tokyo, three in Taipei, two in Taichung, three in Kaohsuing and three more in Taipei before reaching Hong Kong.

Along the route, Liou billed the state for two rooms each night except for the stop in Hawaii. He said he transacted business and his claim for "dinners with public officials" was $121.60—three times his normal monthly charge for dinners of that sort.

Liou claimed his family was sick most of the way because of the sudden changes in food and climate, and says he sent the family back to Wheaton in late August.

Attorneys for the state agree that the state should pick up the costs of moving the family to Hong Kong, but it says the trip may have been no more than a family vacation.

Williams said the state found that the Liou children had been pre-enrolled in Wheaton schools before they left on the trip. Liou refused to comment on that aspect, which he said was in his attorney's hands.

There were other problems besides the family trip, Williams said.

Between April 1 and June 19, 1973, Liou submitted expense vouchers of $4,331, part of which went for four separate ventures from Hong Kong to places like Taiwan, Tokyo and Kaohsuing. He claimed 18 business dinners on those trips.

"His efforts seemed to be shotgunned all over the place. We wanted someone who could dig in and get things done," Williams said.

News job underscored by crises, says AP chief

NEW YORK (AP) — A shaken presidency and a shaken economy underscored the responsibility of newsmen for objective, dispassionate and informative reporting during 1973, Wes Gallagher, president of The Associated Press, said Thursday.

In his annual report to the news service's membership, Gallagher said that Watergate and the energy shortage further eroded the public's faith in institutions, including the press.

He noted that widespread public criticism may have shifted from media to "politicians, government and the oil companies," and that criticism of the press by public officials and segments of the public seemed to abate in 1973.

It may only be temporary, however, "since as public issues become more complex, they generate more controversy and partisanship. The press in reporting such emotional issues finds itself under partisan attack," Gallagher said.

The AP and other news organizations had to struggle for basic information and answers to complex public questions not only about Watergate and energy, he said, but about prisoners of war status at the windup of Vietnam last year and censorship-clouded events of the Mideast war.

Last year also saw a major technical development in the AP, the announcement of a revolutionary new system harnessing the laser beam in the delivery of newsphotos by wire.

Laserphoto's new principles of photo reproduction and transmission produce far better picture quality than conventional methods. They represent the first step toward electronic editing of pictures on TV screens and higher transmission speed when digital communications facilities become available, Gallagher said.

The system was developed jointly by the AP and Massachusetts Institute of Technology and will be installed at member newspapers within the next two years.

The Associated Press last year received its third Pulitzer Prize for photo coverage in Vietnam, Gallagher noted. The picture, by Huynh Cong Ut of AP's Saigon staff, showed children fleeing a misdirected napalm strike. Ut's photo also won every other major award in 1973.

In delivering its news report to newspapers and broadcasters, the AP continued expansion of electronic handling of dispatches. More than 150 cathode ray tube writing and editing terminals were operating in AP bureaus across the nation in 1973.

Dental care costs not rising as fast as economy

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series of articles on dental health.)

It is true that the cost of dental care, like other goods and services in our inflated economy, has risen in recent years. However, dental fees have risen far more slowly than hospital or medical services.

Several alternatives are open to you for obtaining necessary dental care for your family.

First, check to see if there is a dental school in your area that provides services through its clinic. Most types of dental procedures are provided through dental school clinics, and the work is closely supervised by dentists who are on the school faculty. The fees charged are generally quite low, often covering simply the costs of materials and equipment. However, most schools only accept patients whose dental problems fit into the teaching program, so you will have to find out whether or not your family would be eligible for such care.

Second, you might contact your state department of public welfare because you may be qualified to receive dental care under the Medicaid program. Medicaid is designed to help families that are self-supporting but cannot bear the additional expenses of dental or medical care.

Another possibility might be dental prepayment or dental insurance, oftentimes offered through your place of employment. Delta Dental Plans, which operate much like Blue Cross-Blue Shield, offer a variety of programs covering most phases of dental treatment.

In addition, be sure to discuss various types of payment methods with your family dentist. He may be able to work out some sort of budget payment plan for you which would still allow you to secure good dental service.

All of these plans are worth looking into, since neglected dental problems can only lead to a need for more expensive treatment later on.

Good home oral hygiene plus regular dental care can mean substantially reduced costs for dental care.

Thoughts for today

Not that I complain of want; for I have learned, in whatever state I am, to be content. I know how to be abased, and I know how to abound; in any and all circumstances I have learned the secret of facing plenty and hunger, abundance and want. —Philippians 4:11,12.

A contented mind is the greatest blessing a man can enjoy in this world; and if, in the present life, his happiness arises from the subduing of his desires, it will rise to the next from the gratification of them. —Joseph Addison, English essayist.

Ticketed after Rochelle crash

ROCHELLE— Robert Blackman, 25, 205 N. Main, was arrested by Rochelle Police Thursday, after he was involved in an accident on Washington Street at Second Avenue.

The Blackman car was southbound on Washington, attempting to turn left onto Second, when a northbound car driven by Charles Ellis, 37, Ashton, struck his car. Blackman was charged with no valid driver's license and failure to yield turning left. He was released on bail from the Rochelle jail.

UMW to have pot-luck dinner

MT. MORRIS— The United Methodist Women will meet for a pot-luck supper on Wednesday at 6 p.m. in the church dining room. Beverage and rolls will be provided. The committee in charge of the supper hour is Mrs. Charles Hayes, Mrs. Albert Summers and Mrs. Earl Simmons.

Mrs. Carl Withers will lead the devotional and the program will be given by Paul Park, who will relate his experiences in Thailand.

Compton fireman to car blaze

COMPTON— The Compton Fire Department was called early Thursday night to extinguish a fire in a car owned by Ronald Wagner. According to reports, the carburetor backfired while Mrs. Ronald Wagner tried to start the car. Only minor damage was reported.

Rochelle Hospital

Admitted: Feb. 7 — Mrs. James Stroud, Chana; Mrs. Iven Luthy, Oregon; Frank Burdick, DeKalb; Mrs. Wardena Coffman, Mt. Morris; Mrs. Timothy Hayes, Mrs. Mary Ellen Templeman, Rochelle.

Discharged: Allan Rainwater, Monroe Center; Mrs. Robert Miller, West Brooklyn; Mrs. David Simington, Horace Larkin, Rochelle.

Proper transportation crucial to fresh produce

There is a complex system of transportation to deliver fresh fruits and vegetables from the producing areas around the county to local markets.

Proper transportation is crucial in preserving the quality and quantity of fresh fruits and vegetables for the American consumer.

Fresh produce requires refrigerated conditions within a few hours after it is picked.

Fresh produce is transported by rail, truck and air to the nation's markets. It costs $6 billion annually, according to the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association.

No single mode of transportation can handle the transport so produce so both truck and rail do the job.

The raildroad traditionally carried the bulk of the nation's produce to market. However, recently the railroads have not been able to meet the increasing demands and rapidly deteriorating and antiquated "ice cars" relying on ice for refrigeration are being phased out and replaced by mechanically refrigerated cars.

However, the supply of mechanically refrigerated cars hasn't kept pace with the removal of ice cars and shortages of rail service in heavy producing areas has resulted.

Shortages of cars and the difficulty in getting them to areas where needed leads to losses affecting the shipper, the retailer and the consumer.

Another problem is unreliability of rail schedules. A sample schedule revealed only one car in three arrives on time. One shipper-grower reported in the 1950s Bartlett pears arrived by rail in New York from California in 6½ days after shipment. Today, a good percentage arrives between 8 and 11 days after shipment.

Problems with the railroads have caused a gradual shift towards truck carriers. In 1961, 62.3 per cent of fresh produce was shipped by truck and 37.7 per cent by rail. In 1972, the amount shipped by truck had increased to 73.4 per cent, while rail shipments of fruits and vegetables had declined to 26.6 per cent. In some producing areas, 90 per cent of the fresh produce was shipped by truck.

Truck carriers offer flexibility in going to places where rail service is not available or is inadequate for perishable products. Big changes began in the 1940's when the trucking industry developed mechanical refrigerating units, which today maintain zero or lower temperatures indefinitely. Trucks today are lighter, more efficient, better insulated, and can carry a larger load than ever before. Some trucks can even maintain varied temperatures for different commodities. Trucks are often used in combination with rail transport. "Piggybacking" allows trucks to ride on the backs of flatcars, so one truck can move produce from field to loading ramp to flatcar to market. Because of the availability of the equipment—flatcar, truck trailer and tractor—piggybacking has had rapid growth.

Two types of trucking services are used by the produce industry to transport fresh products. Exempt haulers, who are not subject to government regulations, have the great flexibility the industry needs. They are free to go to the high producing areas where most needed. However, because the price is arranged at the time of transport and based on supply and demand of trucks, it may be higher than other regulated forms of transportation. Non-exempt or regulated haulers, who carry manufactured products as well as fresh produce, are also used. They may not be as readily available since they have many industries competing for their services.

The produce industry is especially concerned about transportation of its products in these times of fuel shortages.

Although agriculture has 100 per cent allocation of fuel, efforts are being made to assure the farmer there is also fuel to get them to the consumer.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Don Petrie makes the move to ACCO

You probably already know Don Petrie, but you may not know that he's made the move to ACCO SEED — signed up for a full-line dealership right here in his home area.

Although new to ACCO, Don is no stranger when it comes to hybrid seed. He's an experienced farmer. . . knows exactly what you expect out of a good hybrid. And as an ACCO dealer, he knows how to help you get it with varieties matched to your particular yield goals, soil type, and growing conditions.

We're pleased to have Don as a member of the ACCO SEED team. He'll be glad to tell you about our seed program. . . and help you make the move to ACCO, too.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be an easy person to get along with so long as you're doing what you enjoy. But if someone tries to change your plans, watch out!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't do anything socially today that will cost more than you want to spend. You won't want to go to begin with. You'll regret it later.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be prepared for some outside disturbances that will disrupt the harmony at home. Don't let these trifles put you in a bad mood.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You could later have some doubts about a decision you'll make early in the day if you choose to listen to the opinions of others.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Spend wisely today. Allow only so much and no more for needs that come from the budget. Once you decide what you'll pay, stick to it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You need some time to relax and enjoy yourself. Screen-over work carefully. See if some of it can be put off till later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try not to do anything today that would cause someone you love concern, wondering if you care more for another than him or her.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Before you make plans, check with your mate. Be sure he or she enjoys the company you've chosen as well as you do.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It will anger you today when you learn that the aims you felt you shared with another are not one and the same.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't bank your hopes on persons who think only in material terms. They'll disappoint you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You will have some doubts today about one with whom you're emotionally involved. Be trusting rather than questioning.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This is one of those days when you're likely to find yourself in the middle. What you do will please one, but not another.

Dixon girls win twice to open basketball season

By CONNI DETTMAN

Jacci Bogott combined on five field goals and was six-for-six at the free throw line to lead the Dixon Girl's Interscholastic basketball team past the Prophetstown girls, 42-24, here, Thursday night.

The Dixon girls trailed most of the first quarter. P-town forced the Dixon girls outside and kept them away from the basket long enough to force a turnover.

Late in the first quarter, Dixon started to shoot from outside instead of working inside for the close shot. After missing on the first few attempts outside, Dixon found the range to pull within two points. Then with only a few seconds left on the clock, in the first quarter, Dixon tied the game on a short layup.

Dixon game back stronger on defense in the second quarter. After P-town and Dixon battled for the lead, Dixon's defense began to go after the ball either forcing the turnover or getting the ball on a steal.

P-town used a man-to-man defense, but the faster Dixonites were able to move around the visiting girls.

Dixon outscored Prophetstown in the second quarter to take the half-time lead 20-15.

Dixon outscored P-town 13-3 in the third quarter. Dixon was stronger on the defense and continually managed to steal the ball and pick up the P-town rebounds.

P-town continued to go with a man-to-man defense but because Dixon was faster, they were able to break away for a lay-up or the open shot at the basket.

By the end of the quarter Dixon has increased its lead to 15, leading 33-18.

The final quarter moved slowly. Both teams had difficulty in finding the range on the basket. Dixon finally broke the barrier as they started to hit the long outside shots again.

P-town looked more aggressive in the final minutes of play but Dixon's defense and good outside shooting had already put the game out of Prophetstown's reach.

Adding to Dixon's easy victory along with Bogott was Marty Shroyer with 12 points.

The Dixon girls have a 1-0 record and will travel to Geneseo on Thursday for their second game of the season. The Dixon "B" squad also was successful, down ing the visitors 46-25.

Elder has woes and lead

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — Lee Elder has the putting woes, an aching wrist, a date with a hospital — and a share of the lead.

"As soon as this tournament is over, I'm going in a hospital in Los Angeles and have the wrist drained," Elder said Thursday after his hard-won 71 gave him a tie for the top spot with big Labron Harris after two rounds of the $160,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic.

"I think they call it a ganglia," said Elder, one of the few blacks on the pro tour. "I've got some fluid in the back of the left wrist. I've got to get it out. It hurts pretty bad sometimes, particularly when I break my wrists on the backswing."

Elder has missed a total of 25 putts from 15 feet or less in compiling his two-round total of 140, four under par.

He and Harris, who spiced his second consecutive 70 with an eagle three, shared a one-stroke lead over Johnny Miller, John Mahaffey, Hubert Green, Grier Jones, Mike Reasor and John Lister of New Zealand, all tied at 141.

Miller, Green, Jones and Reasor all had 69s in the bright, warm desert sunshine, Mahaffey had a 70 and Lister 71. First round leader Mark Hayes slipped to a 74—142.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer improved to a 70 for 146 and still had hopes of winning his sixth title in this event.

Rookie Ben Crenshaw improved 10 strokes to a 71, but the big comeback was by DeWitt Weaver. Weaver went from an opening 82 to a 64, a stroke a hole better.

Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Gary Player and Tom Weiskipf are not competing in this five-day, 90-hole marathon. The unique format has the pros playing one round on each of four courses — Indian Wells, Bermuda Dunes, Eldorado and La Quinta — with a different team of three amateurs each day. After 72 holes the field will be cut to the low 70 pros for the final day's play at Indian Wells.

BASEBALL

CHICAGO (AP) — Outfielder-first baseman Jim Hickman, the oldest Chicago Cub player at 36, signed for 1974 today, leaving the club with 24 of its 38 rostered players under contract.

Hickman, last of the original New York Mets still active, last season batted .244 for 92 games in his fifth Cub year.

The Cubs yesterday signed a pair of rookie pitchers, Tom Babcock and Jim Todd. Among those still unsigned are veteran outfielder Billy Williams and first-line pitchers Burt Hooton and Rick Reuschel.

BASKETBALL

ATLANTA — Pete Maravich, the second leading scorer in the National Basketball Association, has been reinstated by Atlanta Hawks' Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons after a two-day suspension.

ITHACA, N.Y. — Dr. Tony Coma resigned as head basketball coach at Cornell University.

FOOTBALL

ARLINGTON, Tex. — Harold "Bud" Elliott, head football coach at Kansas State Teachers College, was named new head coach at the University of Texas at Arlington.

TENNIS

SAN DIEGO — Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles defeated Swen Davidson of Sweden 6-2, 6-3 in the first round of the Grand Masters tennis tour.

Grade school basketball results

The St. Mary's Trojans eighth-grade basketball team clinched the Dixon Public League championship Thursday at Washington School by virtue of a 48-44 victory over the Warriors.

With only one game remaining, the Trojans have a 9-0 mark in city league action. Their overall record is 19-10.

High scorer for the Trojans was Scott Leffelman with 18. Joe Brady chipped in with 15 while Tom Mott added six. Pat Kessel led Washington with 17. Bryan Callow tossed in 13.

WFL club also signs Kellar

Carter jumps to Chicago Fire

CHICAGO (AP) — Virgil Carter is returning to "bleep" country as quarterback of the Chicago Fire club and the first prominent player to jump from the long-established National Football League to the new World Football League.

Carter, still property of the NFL's San Diego Chargers who acquired him from the Cincinnati Bengals after the 1973 season, was one of three players signed Thursday by Fire owner Tom Origer.

The others were Mark Kellar of Northern Illinois, the nation's top collegiate rusher last season and a sixth-round draft choice of the NFL's Minnesota Vikings, and wide receiver John Wright, who "retired" in 1971 from the Detroit Lions.

Carter, 28, began his pro career with the Chicago Bears in 1968 but was traded to the Buffalo Bills after a bitter 1969 row in which he called the Bear management chicken "bleep" for refusing to play him.

The Bills traded Carter to the Bengals before the 1970 season and the quarterback who holds a masters degree in mathematics was with Cincinnati four seasons. He was sidelined last season with a broken left collarbone as he played out his option.

Carter's peak season was 1971 when he led NFL passing percentage with 62.2 and was the league's third best passer.

Charger Coach Tommy Prothro expressed disappointment at Carter's leaving the San Diego club. "We wanted Carter or we wouldn't have traded for him," he said.

However, Ron Mix, the Chargers' executive counsel, said the club knew Carter was in contact with the WFL.

"We hadn't entered serious negotiations with Virgil because of the question of his passing our physical exam. X-rays taken three weeks ago indicated his collarbone had yet to heal."

Carter reportedly received a two-year contract for an estimated $100,000 per year from Origer, who announced only that the three signees got multiple year pacts.

"The Chargers offered me a contract, but this one is better," said Carter. "This is the best deal, all things considered. I want to be part of a winning organization and I think Mr. Origer can bring it about."

One of the factors prompting his move, Carter said, was the fact the WFL, starting operations next July, is downgrading the field goal by moving the goal posts to the back of the end zone and returning missed field goals from beyond the 20 to the line of srimmage.

"The WFL won't be sitting on the ball because nobody will give up the football in midfield," said Carter. "I like the opportunity of scoring touchdowns and thinking in terms of touchdowns all the time."

As for returning to Bear country, Carter said "let's say there was a situation that occurred. George Halas (Bear owner) founded the National Football League and I was young. Now, I'm older and have a good chance with a new team.

"Am I sorry about the Bear squabble? Let's just say I never regretted my four years at Cincinnati under Paul Brown."

Other NFL players, with free agent or retired status, earlier signed with the WFL, including wide receiver Jim Seymour (Bears), first player signed by The Fire; George Sauder (New York Jets), and Alvin Wyatt (Buffalo Bills).

A lot more active players may jump from the senior pro league after Feb. 18-19 when the WFL meets here to conduct a draft of the entire NFL roster.

Origer also introduced Thursday running back Isaac Jackson of Kansas State, a 15th NFL draft pick of Cincinnati, soon expected to sign with The Fire.

"Of course, Virgil Carter is the key man for us," said Origer. "Now that we have him in the fold, it's going to be a lot of fun watching pro football in Chicago again." The Bears last season finished 3-11.

Kellar, a 224-pound running back led 1973 collegiate rushers with 1,720 yards, a 156.3 per game average, and stands the NCAA's fifth all-time rushing leader with 3,745 yards.

Wright, former Illinois star, was Atlanta's second-round 1968 draft choice, but wound up four seasons with the Detroit Lions, quitting in 1971 because of a torn Achilles heel which he says now is mended completely.

Dixon sports

The Dixon "A" frosh basketball squad defeated Princeton 66-41 behind 18 points by Jamie Anderson and 16 by John Kemp at Lancaster Gymnasium Thursday but the "B" team succumbed 47-34 to the visitors.

Anderson got all his points on field goals while Kemp had seven two-pointers and a pair of charity tosses. Dave Zinnen ended with 14 markers. Dixon sealed the win with a 22-6 bulge in the third quarter.

However, in the "B" game, Princeton out-scored the hosts 15-4 in the second frame and 22-13 in the final stanza to notch the win. Princeton had three players in double figures while Bollman paced Dixon with eight points. German and Delhotal added seven apiece.

Dukes face the Pirates

By MIKE CUNNIFF

The Dixon Dukes varsity basketball team, rolling along with three consecutive NCIC victories in the midst of a six-game winning streak, starts what will make or break their conference record as they take on the Ottawa Pirates at 8 p.m. today at Lancaster Gymnasium.

The Dukes and the Pirates have identical 5-2 marks in NCIC action, good for third place in the 12-team loop. Unbeaten (7-0) Rock Falls continues to lead the circuit, followed by La Salle-Peru (6-1).

Ottawa has beaten the two teams that have defeated Dixon in conference play, as the Pirates downed Mendota 60-48 and Hall 70-62. Ottawa has also slipped by Streator 76-65, Rochelle 93-52 and Sterling 69-65 in overtime.

The two Pirate setbacks came at the hands of Rock Falls (66-54) and L-P (63-56). Ottawa has scored 478 points in the seven NCIC contests while giving up 421. The Dukes have netted 476 markers while allowing 402.

Starters for Ottawa include 5'10" senior Don Sutherland and 6'2" senior John Cassidy at guard, 6'6" junior Dan McNamara in the pivot, along with 6'2" senior Kurt Kimes and 6'1" senior Bob McNamara at forward. Kimes is the team's leading scorer with an average of 19 per game, followed by Cassidy's 15.

Last year, when the Dukes dropped a 74-58 decision at Ottawa, Kimes dumped in five field goals and 11 free throws to lead all scorers. Cassidy finished with four and one, respectively, for nine while Bob McNamara ended with seven.

Chris Lendman paced the Dukes with 20 markers on eight field goals and half as many charity tosses. Bill Seeger added 11 while Don Heeg got 10. Randy Paisley contributed three free throws.

After tonight's game, the Dukes face L-P (there) next week, Rock Falls and Streator at home to round out their NCIC schedule. With a little luck and some good performances, Dixon could seriously challenge Rock Falls for the title.

The games with Ottawa, Rock Falls and L-P will either greatly enhance the Dukes' chances of staying among the leaders or will rule out anything more than a .500 finish.

Dixon High School will host its first annual freshman wrestling tournament on Saturday, with the first round to begin at 9:30 a.m. Eight teams, including the host school, are entered in the all-day affair.

Other teams are Stillman Valley, Rockford Boylan, East Rockford, Ottawa, Ashton, Rochelle and IVC (Chillicothe). Dixon frosh coach Rich Lawton stated the young Duke wrestlers stand a good chance of winning the tournament.

So far, the frosh team has compiled an impressive 11-1 dual meet record for the season. The tentative Dixon lineup has Joe Green at 98, Mike Cossairt at 105, Jim Magnifici at 112, Steve Brandau at 119, Gary Magnifici at 126, Bill Kriva at 132, Mike McDonald at 138, Scott Helfrich at 145, Mark Smith at 155, Randy Hazelwood at 167, Mark Galindo at 185 and a forfeit at heavyweight.

Wrestlers will weigh in between 7:30 and 9 a.m. Action will then take place on three mats during all three sessions, including 9:30 a.m., 12 noon and 2:30 p.m. Admission price will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students per session or the entire day may be viewed for $2.50 for adults and $1 for students.

Remember the Booster's Club meeting at Franklin Center on Monday at 7 p.m.

Norwood sparks Pistons

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Willie Norwood used to have a physical attachment to the Detroit bench — now it's emotional.

"The thing that really makes us stronger is our bench," said Norwood, a former benchwarmer whose 27 points in a starting role sparked the Detroit Pistons to a 110-86 victory over the Golden State Warriors in Thursday night's only National Basketball Association game.

In the American Basketball Association, a federal court awarded George Gervin to the San Antonio Spurs Wednesday for at least 10 days, but the Virginia Squires, Gervin's old team, still overpowered the Carolina Cougars 120-97, while the Spurs lost to the Utah Stars 86-83. The Denver Rockets trimmed the Memphis Tams 105-94.

Norwood used to get up for the pre-game National Anthem and then sit right down again. But since forward Don Adams has missed the last seven games with a pulled hamstring muscle, Norwood stays standing for the opening tip-off, then sits on the opposition.

In his last three games, all as a starter, Norwood has totaled 72 points — not bad for a fellow with a 6.9 average entering Thursday night's contest.

"Willie Norwood has just been fantastic," said Detroit Coach Ray Scott. "Right now he's our starting forward."

While Adams has been on the mend, the Pistons have compiled a 6-1 record, stretching their third-place marks in the NBA's Midwest Division to 38-19 — two games behind the Chicago Bulls and four games in back of the Milwaukee Bucks.

Norwood, making the most of his starting opportunity, popped for 16 points in the first quarter as the Pistons built a 14-point lead after 12 minutes, increased it to 17 at the half and pulled away to a 84-58 edge after three quarters.

Rick Barry, the Warriors' leading scorer this season, had just six points.

Stars 86, Spurs 83

On the Gervin issue, the court ruled in San Antonio's favor, but Utah had the final decision against the Spurs Thursday night.

"I was missing some plays. I know I was mixing everybody up out there," said Gervin, who has averaged 25 points a game. He had 12 points in his debut with San Antonio.

Ron Boone's 23 points led the Stars to their ninth straight victory — tying the New York Nets' earlier streak as the ABA's longest.

Squires 120, Cougars 97

The Gervin-less Squires didn't seem to miss the 21-year-old forward as Virginia's front line accounted for 78 points. Cincy Powell had 28 and Jim Eakins 18.

Rockets 105, Tams 94

Byron Beck, the game's leading scorer with 24 points, teamed with Ralph Simpson to score the last six points of the night and provide Denver's cushion over Memphis.
